PROJECT DISCLAIMER

Our website or mobile application provided by Salve Money Inc (hereinafter, "we", "us", "our", "Site" or the "App") are designed to provide general information only, and it's essential to understand the limitations of this content. We cannot guarantee its accuracy, completeness, or relevance to your specific situation, as every individual's circumstances are unique. By using our website or mobile app, you acknowledge that you're doing so at your own risk and discretion. We strive to offer all Site and mobile app information in good faith, but we make no promises about its precision, sufficiency, legitimacy, dependability, accessibility, or thoroughness, whether explicitly stated or otherwise implied. In other words, we're not liable if the information turns out to be incorrect or incomplete. It's crucial to verify this data independently rather than relying on it exclusively, just as you would fact-check information from any other source. Think of it like consulting a travel guidebook versus asking a local for directions - both can be helpful, but one is more reliable and tailored to your specific needs.

We will not be held responsible for any loss or damage you may suffer as a result of using our website or mobile app, or relying on the information we provide. This applies to all kinds of losses, including financial, personal, or business-related. By using our website and mobile app, you understand that you do so entirely at your own risk. This means that if something goes wrong, you cannot hold us accountable. For example, if you make a business decision based on information from our site and it doesn't work out, we are not liable. Similarly, if our website or app is down and you lose valuable time or opportunities, we are not responsible. We provide our site and app on an "as is" basis, and you use them at your own discretion.

EXTERNAL LINKS DISCLAIMER

As you navigate through our website or mobile application, you'll come across links to external websites, content, banners, or advertisements provided by third-party sources. These links can take you to various online destinations, each with its own unique features, tone, and character. For example, you might click on a link to a news article, a social media platform, or an online marketplace. However, it's crucial to recognize that we don't supervise, inspect, or authenticate the accuracy, trustworthiness, or reliability of these external links. We rely on you to be vigilant and discerning when clicking on these links, just as you would when browsing the internet on your own. This means being aware of potential scams, verifying information through trusted sources, and avoiding links that seem suspicious or unsafe. By being proactive and cautious, you'll be able to explore the digital world with confidence and minimize potential risks.

We cannot promise that information from other websites accessed through our site is accurate or reliable. When you click on links to third-party websites or ads, you're dealing with those companies directly, not with us. We won't get involved in or accept responsibility for any issues that come up during your transactions with these outside providers of products or services. Think of it like visiting a different store - we can't control what they sell or how they operate. Our role is limited to providing a platform for you to find their websites and services. If you have problems or questions, you should contact the third-party provider directly, as we won't be able to help you.
